Socratic Seminar Reflection

Name: Priya Raman

After the discussion: what changed or stayed the same for you?

Now I think intent matters. Someone who breaks a rule to help another person is different.

Notes on how the discussion went:

The talk got better when we used the text as evidence.

Socratic Seminar Reflection

Name: Tomas Okafor

After the discussion: what changed or stayed the same for you?

I agree with Marcus that intent matters. I would still try to change the rule the right way first.

Notes on how the discussion went:

Two people did most of the talking.

Socratic Seminar Reflection

Name: Marcus Delgado

After the discussion: what changed or stayed the same for you?

My idea did not change. Intent matters most and Dana and Priya both said something like that.

Notes on how the discussion went:

We went off topic one time but came back.

Socratic Seminar Reflection

Name: Jordan Whitfield

After the discussion: what changed or stayed the same for you?

Same as before. Fairness is the main thing for me.

Notes on how the discussion went:

It was fun. I wish we had more time.

Socratic Seminar Reflection

Name: Dana Kowalski

After the discussion: what changed or stayed the same for you?

I still think unfair rules can be broken but Priya made me see that you should try to change the rule first.

Notes on how the discussion went:

Most people talked at the start. A few kids stayed quiet.

Socratic Seminar Reflection

Name: Lena Hofman

After the discussion: what changed or stayed the same for you?

I changed my mind a little. Some rules protect people so breaking them can be right.

Notes on how the discussion went:

Everyone listened to each other, it was calm.
