Socratic Seminar Reflection

Name: Lena Hoffmann

Start of the seminar: what do you think about the question?

I do not think you should break rules because then nobody knows what to expect.

Socratic Seminar Reflection

Name: Dana Kowalski

Start of the seminar: what do you think about the question?

I think breaking a rule is okay if the rule is unfair, because rules should protect people not hurt them.

Socratic Seminar Reflection

Name: Jordan Whitfield

Start of the seminar: what do you think about the question?

I think it is fine to break a rule if nobody gets hurt and it is fair.

Socratic Seminar Reflection

Name: Priya Raman

Start of the seminar: what do you think about the question?

Rules are there to keep everyone safe so you should almost never break them.

Socratic Seminar Reflection

Name: Tomas Okafor

Start of the seminar: what do you think about the question?

Rules protect people. Breaking them is wrong unless the rule is hurting someone.

Socratic Seminar Reflection

Name: Marcus Delgado

Start of the seminar: what do you think about the question?

It depends on why you break the rule. If you are trying to help someone it can be okay.